Artist Tells of Cartooning and Illustrating Before Saturday Night Club.

Producing original drawings and paintings of Christy, Wenzell and many other famous artists, as well as an original cartoon by McManus, the man who draws "Bringing Up Father" for the State Journal, Albert T. Reid, well known Topeka artist and cartoonist, gave a most interesting and instructive address before the Saturday Night club Saturday evening.

He had original sketches from artists and also the books in which appeared the printed illustration. Mr. Reid not only gave many fascinating inside facts on the magazine and novel illustrating practices but he carried the original paintings from the time they were sketched to the time they appeared in the printed form, explaining in detail the process of engraving, plate making, color printing, etc.

In explaining the reproduction of cartoons he used mats, plates and proofs from the McManus comic strips in the State Journal and "scooped" the newspaper by showing the guests the Monday "Bringing Up Father."

Following the talk Tom McNeal gave a series of witty reminiscences of the days that he and Mr. Reid went on a combination political chalk-talk campaign together in 1900.
